Four-legged friends pave way for human cancer treatments

Virginia Buechner-Maxwell, professor, Large Animal Internal Medicine

Animal behavior course helps Virginia Tech students discover what dogs want

Mark D Freeman, clinical assistant professor, Community Practice

The 42 best gifts for dogs and dog lovers, according to vets

Hollie Schramm, clinical assistant professor, Production Management Medicine

Feet matter, Schramm explains to beef producers

Nathaniel White, professor emeritus, Marion duPont Scott Equine Medical Center

Dr. Nat White Receives AAEP's Sage Kester Beyond the Call Award

D. Phillip Sponenberg, professor, Department of Biomedical Sciences and Pathobiology

Virginia Tech pioneering cancer care for pets

Virginia-Maryland Veterinary College Is Expanding

Vet Med in the News

Considerations When Treating a PPID Horse That Has Joint Pain

Julie Settlage (DVM '00) explains what to pay attention to when treating a horse that has joint discomfort.

Jim McLean (DVM '94) gives advice to help prevent a holiday disaster for both you and your dog.

Dog Safety on Holidays: Tips and Tricks for Pet Parents

CVP is a growing community of veterinary care professionals aimed at enhancing animal development agreement.

PetWellClinic of North Bethesda is the first of 25 locations slated to open under a development agreement.

PetWellClinic Opens First DC-Area Veterinary Care Site

Vet Med Alumni

The series is free and will offer 6 hours of CE credit.

To encourage participation the event has several attendance options. Please make sure to reserve your spot by January 20, 2023.

Virginia-Maryland College of Veterinary Medicine is offering its 2023 Equine Lecture Series Continuing Education.

Pet Well Clinic is the nation’s leader in mobile veterinary care

PetWellClinic Opens First DC-Area Veterinary Care Site

Hollie Schramm (left) and Sierra Guynn (right), both clinical assistant professors, put in countless hours of study and hard work to achieve these accomplishments.

Over the past year, two members of the veterinary college’s Production Management Medicine team became board certified by the American College of Veterinary Preventive Medicine and the American Board of Veterinary Practitioners, respectively. Recent diplomates were recognized at the college’s recent veterinary student convocation.

Hollie Schramm earned the Mark E. and Susan S. Wagner Award, which recognizes outstanding teaching ability, character, and leadership in the areas of teaching and service.

Sierra Guynn earned the Robert C. and JoAnn S. Evans Award, which recognizes outstanding teaching ability, character, and leadership in the areas of teaching and service.

More than 20 awards were given to students at the convocation in recognition of outstanding classroom and laboratory performance, as well as contributions to their community and veterinary field.

To continue receiving our emails, add us to your address book.

Blacksburg, VA | 24061 US

View this email

Got this as a forward?

Manage

[Image]

[Image]